

From: Murray Perl
Sent: Thursday, October 15, 2020 10:44 PM
To: Donald Kirkpatrick <dakirkpt@verizon.net>
Subject: Computer Club warning

Hi Don,

I got this suspicious email from Fred Theile and when I hovered my mouse over Fred's name it revealed that the email was actually sent from another account. The email asked me to click on a link which I obviously didn't do.

You may want to discuss this security threat at the next Computer Club meeting.

Murray

The screenshot shows an email client interface. At the top, there is a header for an email from "Chase Sapphire Pref." with the subject "Murray, fuel your fall plans with new and extended offers - The air is cool, the l..." and a timestamp of "5:04 PM". Below this, a list of emails is visible, including one from "Fred Theile" with the subject "Fwd: Note from Fred Theile - On Thursday, October 15, 2020 12:29 P...". A contact card for "Fred Theile" is overlaid on the list, showing a blue profile picture, the name "Fred Theile", and the email address "jtveira@terra.com.br". Below the contact card are icons for "Add to Contacts", a mail icon, a calendar icon, a chat icon, and a video call icon. Other emails in the list include one from "Bob, me 3" with a timestamp of "1:19 PM", one from "Bruce Epste" with a timestamp of "1:03 PM", and one from "Consumer I" with the subject "Guide is here! - If you are having trouble see..." and a timestamp of "11:07 AM".