World Trade Center is a terminal station in Lower Manhattan for PATH rail service. It was originally opened on July 19, 1909, as Hudson Terminal, but was torn down, rebuilt as World Trade Center, and re-opened July 6, 1971. Following the September 11, 2001 attacks, a temporary station opened in 2003. This station serves as the terminus for the Newark – World Trade Center and Hoboken – World Trade Center routes. The main station house, the Oculus, opened on March 4, 2016, and the terminal was renamed the World Trade Center Transportation Hub, or World Trade Center for short.

DETAILS

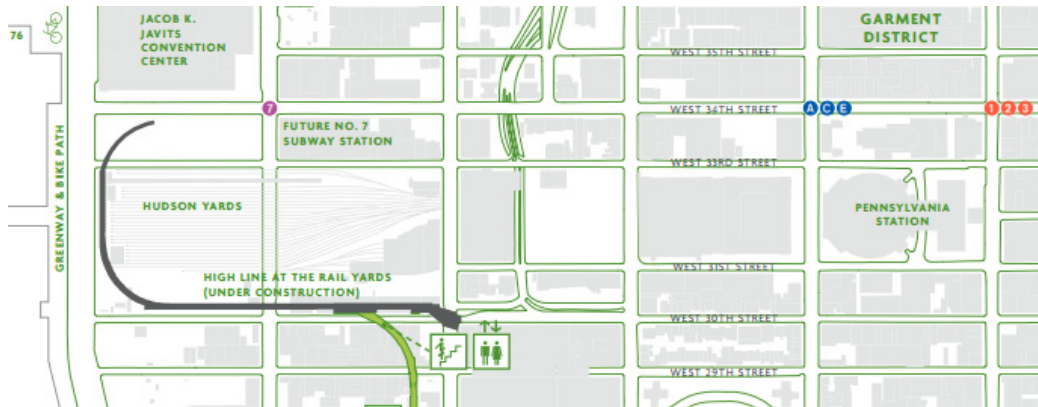

The critical part of the trip is catching the 0913 express train from the Ramsey Rte. 17 station with ticket in hand.

This means allowing plenty of time to find the station garage, park the car, go the bridge from the garage to the train platforms (on level three of the garage), buy $4.00 parking tickets from machines at the garage end of the bridge, cross the bridge to the north end, turn right at the steam locomotive mural, descend two long flights to the train platform.

Turn right at the cow, at the foot of the stairs, turn left on the platform, walk thirty feet to the rooster in the heated waiting room. I will be there and will help you negotiate the fare machines. Please bring TWO credit cards in case one is not accepted by the machine.

There is more excitement to come, but, this is the trickiest and most time-critical part of the trip. DO NOT MISS THE TRAIN.

At Secaucus we get a free transfer to a train headed for Penn Station. Penn Station is an amazing labyrinth. Somehow find your way to the northwestern street level which is 34th street. Walk west to Eleventh Ave. The High Line begins near the SW corner of 34th and Eleventh.

Persons missing the 0913 express can enjoy a much longer ride, for the same fare on the following:
